

GROWING TOGETHER

SIWOK IN ACTION

Dear
donors
and friends of Siwok

During the month of August, we reached 44 active school gardens, a milestone that fills us with joy and motivates us to continue bringing opportunities even to the most remote areas. At the same time, we continue strengthening our institutional strategy through new partnerships with companies, and we are preparing for Alec's upcoming trip to Ireland, where he will meet with SAMS Ireland (South American Missionary Society), a CHRISTIAN ORGANISATION that has been walking alongside us for more than 15 years. Together, we have carried out initiatives that expand access to water, promote family-based small-scale agriculture, support crafts development, and generate positive income opportunities — always under the “teach to fish” principle. This meeting will be an opportunity to share the progress of our project and to further strengthen this valuable bond of faith and cooperation. Thanks to your support, we can keep transforming lives and developing projects that truly make a difference.

WE GENERATE REAL OPPORTUNITIES

WE'RE OUT ON THE FIELD!

We cover hundreds of kilometers on dirt roads, reaching remote areas and overlooked communities.

On every trip, we encounter very harsh realities: Native american communities with urgent needs.

School Gardens: Learning food production

Today, there are 44 school gardens growing in different NATIVE AMERICAN WICHÍ COMMUNITIES along the Bermejo and Pilcomayo rivers.

In each garden, children learn, and the community finds a place where the land becomes both food and opportunity

LOCAL PRODUCTION AND SALES

We continue offering the fresh products from our greenhouses in Salta, which now reach various businesses that trust us. To them, we extend our gratitude for supporting responsible and fair consumption.

HONEY PRODUCTION PROGRAM

▼ We continue with honey production, a culturally embraced project that provides education and economic support.

Strategic Partnerships

This month, we continue strengthening our institutional strategy through the support of companies that believe in our work.

We especially thank:
